THE DECISION DEFERRED

Commissioners Delay Action on Application of the Capital Traction Company.

National-Maude Adams in "Romeo and Proposed Loop on Fourteenth Street Subject of Further Consideration -Probable Outcome.

> The construction by the Capital Traction Company of a loop at the Mt. Pleasant terminus of its 14th street line was again considered by the District Commissioners n board meeting yesterday afternoon, with the result that the Commissioners deeided to postpone the question of granting the company's application until they have been furnished with the plans of the passenger station which the company proposes to erect in connection with the loop. As has been heretofore explained in The Star, the railroad company has purchased tract of land in the square bounded by 13th and 14th streets and Kenvon street and Wnitney avenue, whereon it proposes erect a passenger station. This station the company proposes to connect with its train tracks on 14th street by running a single track eastwardly on Kenyon street to the tract purchased by it, thence northwardly through the purchased land to Whitney avenue, and thence westwardly along Whitney avenue to 14th street. The company claims that the Commissioners are authorized to grant its application for the use of said thoroughfares by the act of Congress incorporating the Washington and Georgetown Railroad Company, to the rights and privileges of which corporation the Capital Traction Company asserts it succeeded. This claim of the latter com-pany, the attorney for the District has advised the Commissioners, is sustained by the law in the case, provided it be shown hat the public interests demand the erection of such passenger station and the necessary connecting tracks.

Opposed by Residents.

The construction of the proposed loop is stoutly opposed by residents and property wners in its immediate vicinity, and it is because of this opposition that the Commissioners have so long deliberated in the matter. Recently, as was stated in The Star at the time, the Commissioners inquired of the company whether its profavor of some other plan, which would re-move all grounds of complaint on the part of the immediate residents and property owners. It is understood, however, that the company in reply informed the Com-missioners that some other plan is not practicable under all the circumstances. In practicable under all the circumstances. And view of the company's reply the Commissioners have now asked to be furnished with the plans of the proposed passenger station. When these plans have been furnished. station. When these plans have been furnished them, it is understood that the Commissioners will promptly dispose of the question, provided, of course, the plans meet all the requirements of the building question. regulations.

The Commissioners decline to state in what manner they will dispose of the matter, but there is every reason to believe that the company's application will be that the company's application will be granted. Indeed, as was stated in The Star several days ago, the Commissioners very much doubt whether they could deny it, in view of all the circumstances. Therefore, there seems to be little doubt of the ompany being eventually authorized by he Commissioners to construct the proposed loop.

GRADUATES? IN LAW.

Six Women Pass Through Ordeal in Washington College.

The Washington College of Law graduated its first class last night, six young ladies being presented with diplomas certifying their fitness for practice in the courts. Washington College is an institution for the education of women in technical branches of law. The ceremonies anent the commencement were held in the Church of Our Father before quite a large audience. The six graduates sat upon the platform, each attired in the academic cap and gown. Judge Seth Shepard of the District Court of Appeals presided, and Mr. J. J. Hemphill, attorney-at-law, delivered the address of the evening.

The invocation was offered up by Rev. Charles A. Stakely, pastor of the First Baptist Church, after which Mr Hemn hill was introduced. He spoke of the requirements of the legal profession, saying the subject at hand must be thoroughly mastered. In practice the lawyer must be ready at a second's notice to controvert argument, and know the proper move to make at the crisis of a trial. Continuous reading and study is the price of success in the profession, and one must not be con-tent with the school course, however thorough it might be. Mr. Hemphill also touched upon the relation of women to the profession, and their opportunities. The ladies must remember, he said, that in the court room they appear as the competitors of men and must be looked upon in the same light as other contending attorneys. Mrs. Ellen Spencer Mussey, dean of the faculty, also addressed the graduates, her experience as a lawyer fitting her for the sound advice she gave. Mrs. Mussey said that every lawyer could not become famous, but every lawyer, man or woman, could become useful to the profession and the world at large.

Justice Shepard conferred the degree of bachelor of law upon the following grad-uates: Misses Emma R. Balley, Georgia; Caroline I. Griesheimer, Ohio; Della S. Jackson, District of Columbia; Margaret C. Lohr, District of Columbia; Helen Malcolm, Virginia; Flora Raymond, New York, Rev. George S. Duncan of the Eckington Presbyterian Church pronounced the bene-diction. A section of Haley's Band was present and rendered a number of pleasing selections.

The newly elected officers of Georgetown Patriarchs, No. 42, Grand United Order of Odd Feliows, gave a banquet to the members of the order last evening at their hall on 28th street. Addresses were delivered by Capt. Joseph C. Beckett, First Lieut. George T. Beason, Second Lieut. Walter J. Abrams, Chief of Stewards N. G. Mitchell, Quartermaster Daniel Washington and others. Since the reorganization of the Patriarchs much interest has been manifested and many new members are expected. The banquet last evening was greatly enjoyed by all who attended.

Ida Timbers, aged twenty-six, a colored domestic employed by Mrs. Hattie W. Perkins of 3009 Dumbarton avenue, was placed under arrest last evening by Policeman Trussell on a warrant charging her with petty larceny. She is alleged to have stolen a number of articles from the household at different times, the aggregate value of which is about $25. The police have been supplied with a full list of the missing ar-ticles, and an effort will be made to re-

John H. Buscher's Death on B. and O. Railway Tracks Last Night.

Was Struck by an Express Train and Instantly Killed-Inquest This Afternoon.

John H. Buscher, a laboring man, who lived at No. 918 4th street northeast, was killed by a train on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad crossing at 4th and I streets about 8 o'clock last night. An incoming express, known as the strawberry train, inflicted the fatal injury. Buscher died before the train could be stopped. His skull was crushed and his left arm was torn almost from his body.

Mr. Buscher was fifty-six years old, and had been employed at the feed store of Robert Nevitt on H street northeast for nearly twelve years. During all this time he had been in the habit of crossing the railroad tracks daily, and had never before met with an accident. Usually he was very careful in going over the grade crossings, and the manner of his death last night is in dispute. Not until the witnesses are heard by the coroner's jury will the ques-tion be settled. Mr. Buscher left his place of employment about the usual hour last night and started home. He was talking to a son-in-law about two minutes before the accident which cost him his life. The storm was approaching, and Mr. Buscher was advised to hurry in order to reach home before the rain began falling. His quick movements along 4th street were afterward observed. Just as he reached the afterward of the strawberry express canding. He was on the west side of the crossing, and when the engine hit him he was thrown into a ditch to the north and was the tracks.

As soon as he could do so Engineer Whooley stopped the train and sent back members of the crew to assist the victim of the accident, if there was anything that they could do. As death had come interests of the could be accident. stantly, all they could do was to remove the body from the ditch to the pavement. The ninth precinct patrol wagon soon responded to a call and the body was removed to the morgue.

Beyond the injury to the arm and back of the head the body was not disfigured. How Mr. Buscher managed to get on the railroad tracks is a question for the coroner's jury to determine. jury to determine. The watchman at the crossing says he had lowered his gates, and that Mr. Buscher evidently had not needed the warning thus given. tain that the unfortunate man went under the gates.
Friends of the deceased say that Mr.

Buscher was a very careful man, and while some of them claim the gate on the south side of the crossing was up, the police could not find any witnesses who could tell of such a condition of affairs. At the time of the accident there was a strong wind blowing, and the clouds of dust, it is thought, blinded Mr. Buscher. The deceased leaves several grown chil-dren. Coroner Carr viewed the body this morning and will hold an inquest at 4 ous and Fantastic Tricks. The storm which swept down from the porthwest and enveloped Washington early ast night was unusual in its violence as well as in its other characteristics. Arriving with almost the proportions of a tempest, the high wind carried perfect sheets of water hurled from low-hanging clouds constantly streaked with vivid forked lightning and reverberating with a steady cannorade of thunder. After passing to the southwest it retraced its course, and while its strength was diminished it had sufficient force to make the nervous tremble again and assure danger and drenching to every one out of doors.

The deluge quickly filled the sewer traps, making the openings inadequate to admit the torrents that rushed to them, and Pennsylvania avenue and the other thoroughfares in the low-lying sections of the y were flooded curb deep clear across. Over three-quarters of an inch of rain fell during the heavy part of the storm. Lightning struck in numerous places, limbs were torn from trees, and all the electric railways found it either impossible to run or were seriously retarded, the conduits flooding at low levels.

The storm was indirectly responsible for the death of Mr. John H. Beesther, who attempted to reach his home near the Baltimore and Ohio tracks by crossing the railroad at 4th and I streets northeast Rlinded by the rain he did not observe an ap-proaching train, and was struck and killed. Another accident due to the storm result-
